Element: LIBRARY SERVICES

Library Services within Franklin County are currently provided by two facilities, the Lavonia Library and the Royston Library. These facilities are operated by the Athens Regional Library System with funds provided by Franklin County and the cities of Lavonia, Canon, Franklin Springs, Carnesville and Royston.

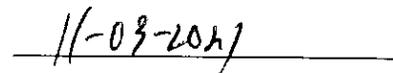

The delivery of library services within Franklin County, as they are being implemented, is effective and does not result in any duplication or overlapping of services. There is the recognition, however, that the projected growth throughout the county may increase demand for expansions of existing facilities or an additional facility within Franklin County. Preliminary discussions have noted that potential exists to introduce a new library within the county outside of Royston and Lavonia. Thus, at a minimum it is the interest of the elected officials of the Franklin County community to continue the existing level of library service delivery while continuing to explore options for expanding services within existing facilities or through an additional library.

Within our county, the delivery of the public facilities and/or services as presented above is considered effective and efficient both now and for the planning horizon and does not result in any duplication or overlapping of services. 1. What incompatibilities or conflicts between the land use plans of local governments were identified in the process of developing the service delivery strategy?

Franklin County and its municipalities produce their comprehensive plans as a single, joint document, using that planning process to ensure land use management and future development strategies are consistent and compatible across jurisdictions. 2. Check the boxes indicating how these incompatibilities or conflicts were addressed:
